3 THINGS YOU NEED TO KNOW

WEST VIRGINIA'S WORST FLOODING IN A CENTURY KILLS 24

1 West Virginia's three most devastated counties and possibly others will receive federal assistance after the state's worst flooding in more than a century killed at least 24 people, officials said. President Barack Obama declared a major disaster for West Virginia and ordered federal aid to affected individuals in Kanawha, Greenbrier and Nicholas counties that could include grants for temporary housing, repairs and other programs. Obama spoke with West Virginia Gov. Earl Ray Tomblin to give his condolences and make sure the governor has the federal resources he needs, White House spokesman Eric Schultz said. West Virginia's death toll from flooding is the highest for any state this year. REUTERS

BREXIT TURMOIL ALARMS ASIA, DEEPENS PARTY CONFLICTS

2 Turmoil unleashed by Britain's vote to leave the European Union heightened anxiety in Asia on Sunday, with China, Japan and South Korea fretting over the risk to global financial stability a few hours before markets reopen. In Britain, open conflict spread from the ruling Conservatives to the opposition, and senior Labour lawmakers attempted a coup against their leader after traditional supporters rejected the party's pro-EU stand in droves at Thursday's referendum. Splits widened across the nation. Over three million Britons signed a petition calling for a re-run of the referendum, with the number climbing by the hour, and an opinion poll showed a strong majority of Scots now want to break with the United Kingdom. REUTERS

DEADLY CALIF. WILDFIRE DESTROYS 150 HOMES, MORE THREATENED

3 A massive wildfire burning out of control in the foothills of central California has left at least 150 homes in ruins and damaged another 75, officials said, warning that more residents may be forced to flee the advancing flames. The so-called Erskine fire broke out some 40 miles northeast of Bakersfield in Kern County, has already claimed at least two lives, sent three firefighters to the hospital and forced thousands of people to evacuate their homes. More than 1,100 firefighters have been deployed to battle the blaze, which has blackened some 35,700 acres and was zero percent contained. California Gov. Jerry Brown has declared a state of emergency for Kern County. REUTERS

ADVANCE PEEK ON THE HOLIDAY FORECAST

So far, this summer has lived up to the long-range predictions of being an unseasonably warm one. Although prolonged heat and humidity have been in short supply, windy, warm conditions interrupted by brief episodes of showers and storms will be the rule heading into the last week of June and the Fourth of July holiday weekend.

The hottest and most humid part of this summer still lies ahead, as the dogs will certainly start barking as August will bring us a pure summer swelter.

After a nice warm, but dry, final weekend of June, things will heat up as you start this week and humidity levels will be on the rise as well. The next chance you will be reaching for your umbrella will be on Tuesday. Showers and storms, a few possibly severe, will start to rock the Interstate 95 corridor from Philly to NYC to Boston.

The highest threat will be later in the day Tuesday and Tuesday night. Computer models are indicating that the system associated with the storms will begin to slow up and scattered showers and storms could linger into Wednesday, especially from New York City and points north and east toward Boston.

The Fourth of July weekend will start out nice. Friday should bring a decent amount of sunshine with the mercury hanging out in the warm 80s. The only exception could be Philly as a weak disturbance might set off a late storm, but the Shore is looking good.

Saturday should turn out to be a great day as ample sunshine and warm temps will keep the barbecue rain-free throughout the Northeast. Beaches up and down the coast will feature lots of sun and readings mainly in the upper 70s

I'm a bit concerned about Sunday, July 3, when increasing humidity, combined with a weak frontal wave could kick-off some afternoon and evening storms. How widespread, though, is still in doubt. Regardless, it will be a sticky day with temps into the 80s inland, upper 70s at beach locations.

By Monday the Fourth, the frontal system responsible for any storms on Sunday should start to clear the coast allowing for a return to sunshine with lower humidity. The only location where a leftover shower or storm could linger is along the southern

Pride parades tinged with sadness after Orlando massacre

The march in New York, held every year since 1970, began at noon near the Empire State Building and ended at Greenwich Village's Stonewall Inn, the birthplace of the gay rights movement and the newest national monument.

Millions of people draped in the rainbow hues of LGBT pride turned out for parades across the United States on Sunday, two weeks after a massacre at a Florida nightclub stirred fear and solidarity among lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender Americans.

Hillary Clinton, the presumptive Democratic presidential nominee, joined the march for a few blocks in an unannounced appearance. She waved while walking alongside New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo and New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio.

Police stepped up security to reassure parade-goers and ward off potential threats after a gunman pledging allegiance to the Islamic State militant group killed 49 people at Orlando's Pulse nightclub on June 12. It was the deadliest mass shooting in modern U.S. history.

"This parade is New York City saying defiantly, we will stand up to hatred," de Blasio told a rally at the parade's terminus. "We will stand up to those who would try to undermine our values."

This was the first of a string of parades planned on Sunday in Chicago, San Francisco and other cities.

In New York and elsewhere, the mood was decidedly subdued for an event that in recent years has evolved from a protest march against police harassment into a roving street party.

"I've been so heartbroken and outraged by Orlando," said Dorothee Benz, 50, who was marching with a group called New York Supports Orlando. "We need to be out loud and proud more than ever, but it comes with mourning and anger."

By contrast, pure joy had emanated from the throngs of people who turned out for pride parades last June, just days after the Supreme Court legalized same-sex marriage across the country.

Some 2 million spectators had been expected to line the route of New York's parade this year, while organizers forecast a turnout of 1 million in Chicago.

Police in New York beefed up security with helicopter and maritime patrols and an increased presence of uniformed and plainclothes officers, while authorities took similar steps in Chicago.

"We are monitoring from the air, looking for suspicious packages, which people should also report if they see anything," Chicago Police Department spokesman Anthony Guglielmi said by phone from the parade route.

Honoring Orlando victims

At the head of the Chicago parade, a group carried photos of the 49 Orlando nightclub victims. Later a contingent of marchers donned elaborate, rainbow-colored costumes constructed from hundreds of balloons and carried large letters, also formed by balloons, spelling out P-U-L-S-E.

The lead float in New York's parade carried Pulse owner Barbara Poma and the club's entertainment manager, Neema Bahrami. All told, organizers said the parade would feature 2,000 marchers and 85 floats, most of them adorned with the LGBT rainbow.

The color orange, which has come to symbolize the Orlando victims, was ubiquitous. Many people wore orange bandanas or carried flags with orange stripes as an expression of outrage over gun violence in America and support for tighter controls over firearms.

President Barack Obama designated the Stonewall Inn as a national monument on Friday. It was the first time such an honor has been bestowed in recognition of LGBT Americans' contributions.

The bar was the scene of a 1969 police raid that triggered riots and an impromptu rally that ignited a long struggle to bring LGBT people into the American mainstream and guarantee their rights.

Among the New York marchers were three men from Gays Against Guns, or GAG, a group that was formed since the Orlando shootings.

"We realized that in different facets, the gay community has been supporting commonsense gun laws for a long time, but it has never organized as a gay community," said Chris Arruda, 50, a post-production supervisor for television.

Carrying a sign reading "NRA prepare to GAG," a reference to the National Rifle Association, Arruda wore a pink triangle on his bare chest, an emblem that the Nazis forced homosexuals to wear before and during World War II. REUTERS

Painful Varicose Veins & Swollen Legs?

Varicose veins are more than a cosmetic problem. They may lead to complications such as Deep Vein Thrombosis (DVT) and Pulmonary Embolism (PE), both of which claim up to 300,000 lives a year in the United States.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM

- ☒ Varicose Veins
- ☒ Spider Veins
- ☒ Itching and Burning
- ☒ Leg Pain and Cramps
- ☒ Heaviness and Swelling
- ☒ Skin Discoloration
- ☒ Ulcers and Blood Clots
- ☒ Difficulty Walking Long Distances

You may have a condition called venous insufficiency, which left untreated can lead to serious health complications. Our non-surgical, minimally invasive and painless endovenous procedure only takes 15 minutes.

Have you had prior vein treatment and are not satisfied with the results? USA Vein Clinics can help!

Dept. of Health directed staff to enter false results for water lead tests at NYC day cares

As federal health officials confirmed on Friday that kids in Flint, Michigan, had been poisoned following the contamination of the city's water, an investigation has found that New York City failed to ensure water at day care centers were properly tested for lead.

City Comptroller Scott Stringer announced Friday that according to a recent audit of the city's Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DOHMH) — which is responsible of overseeing about 2,300 group child/day care centers citywide — failed to ensure that childcare providers tested their water for lead.

The Bureau of Child Care (BCC), a division of DOHMH, is responsible for monitoring providers in the city. A group day care center is classified as offering services to three or more children under

GETTY IMAGES

6 years old for five or more hours per week, and more than 30 days in a 12-month period.

One of the largest findings investigators found was that DOHMH officials had ordered staff to enter false information into the agency's database to show that a lead test had been completed at a particular center, even when it wasn't true.

"The health of our children is non-negotiable," Stringer said. "The fact that the Department of Health directed its employees to enter false information in an official database is a blatant violation of public trust. It should not take an audit to ensure that a city agency is doing its job to protect our kids."

The results of the audit come the same day as the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention confirmed that children who drank water in Flint, Michigan — which suffered from contaminated water after switching water supply — had a 50 percent higher risk of dangerously elevated blood lead levels, according to NBC News.

In 2008, New York City began requiring water lead tests to be completed at all day care centers. Three years later, the DOHMH's computerized database was changed to only issue permits when proof of a lead test was present.

The audit reviewed permits issued to day care centers from Aug. 29, 2012, through Aug. 29, 2014, and examined a sample of 119 providers.

Some of the findings of the audit included finding out that the agency failed to fully enforce water lead test requirements, even after over 10 percent of day care centers showed positive results. Out of the 119 day care centers examined, investigators found that tests had been done at only 49 of the sites — of which five had unacceptable levels of lead.

Auditors also discovered that the BCC directed staff in an email to report that tests had showed positive result at 70 centers, even after no reports had been done. Through the false recording, the agency bypassed the system to issue permits to centers.

In response to the comptroller's audit, the DOHMH announced that it reviewed the 70 childcare centers with missing results and found that 61 are compliant with water lead test protocol. The other nine centers have since closed.

The agency also said that it had reviewed its database to make sure that lead tests were done at all sites and discovered that 95 percent of the 2,300 day care sites did not show elevated lead levels and the remaining five percent are being corrected.

A spokesman from the mayor's office described the audit's claim as a "blatant mischaracterization," and said that no children were harmed by the water.

Brooklyn man shot and killed trying to protect wife

A Brooklyn man who was shot trying to protect his wife from a gunman Sunday has died, the New York Daily News reported.

Dion James, 30, was shot in the back twice just after 4 a.m. Sunday after trying to break up a fight between his wife and the gunman on Franklin Avenue and Union Street in Crown Heights, police said.

James was rushed to Kings County Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Cops said it's not immediately clear what the argument was about, but investigators are questioning James' wife.

Melee at California capitol leaves at least 5 injured

At least five people were stabbed at a rally on Sunday on the grounds of the California state capitol building in Sacramento as members of a white supremacist group clashed with counter-protesters, according to authorities.

A total of eight people were transported to a local hospital, two of them with life-threatening injuries, a spokesman for the Sacramento Fire Department said.

Earlier, spokesman Chris Harvey told CNN that the department brought five people to the hospital with stab wounds, and that no arrests had been made. It was not immediately clear what type of injuries the three other people had sustained.

Violence erupted during a scheduled rally on the west steps of the State Capitol at about noon local time, George Granada from the Capitol Protection Service division of the California Highway Patrol, told CNN.

Matthew Heimbach, chairman of Traditionalist Worker Party, said his group had a police permit to hold a peaceful rally outside the capitol but it had expected violence.

"We were there to support nationalism. We are white nationalists," Heimbach told Reuters. "We were there to take a stand."

The Southern Poverty Law Center describes the group as a white nationalist extremist group.

The Sacramento Police Department said on Twitter that it had closed some areas to traffic during the protest.

Representatives of the Sacramento police could not be reached immediately for further comment.

Video footage on social media showed a group of people, some of them wearing masks and wielding what appeared to be wooden bats, attack others in the area where the rally was being held.

Photos on social media showed emergency officials treating a victim on the grass in the area as police officers stood guard.

The melee comes about four months after four people were stabbed during a scuffle between members of the Ku Klux Klan and counter-protesters near a planned KKK rally in Anaheim, California.

Ohio State men's soccer player drowns while swimming in lake

An Ohio State University men's soccer player drowned while swimming with his teammates in a lake, according to the university and local media.

Fikayo Idowu, 19, died on Friday while swimming in a lake about 40 miles northeast of Columbus, Ohio, The Columbus Dispatch reported. He was with teammates at the time of the drowning.

Idowu, a defender, had played with the Ohio State soccer team since 2014, according to the university athletics website. A Madison, Mississippi, native, he was majoring in health and rehabilitation sciences while planning to attend medical school. He also was a two-time Ohio State scholar-athlete award winner.

Representatives of the university could not be immediately reached.

New York Times fashion photog Bill Cunningham dies at age 87

Bill Cunningham, the celebrated New York Times fashion photographer known for his shots of emerging trends on the streets of New York City, died on Saturday at age of 87 after being hospitalized for a stroke.

Cunningham worked for the New York Times for nearly 40 years, operating "as a dedicated chronicler of fashion and as an unlikely cultural anthropologist," the newspaper said.

His photo spreads were a staple of the paper's Style section and chronicled changing fashion through his choice of themes such as swirling skirts, Birkin bags and gaudy floral prints.

"A lot of people complain about fashion and fast fashion. There is no fashion. That is baloney. Look at this," he said in a video for a recent spread in the paper on the use of black and white contrasts in clothing.

Cunningham took pictures of celebrated New Yorkers at swank events and traveled the city by bicycle for decades, often wearing his signature blue jacket, to shoot street fashion typically using a single-lens reflex camera.

"He wanted to find subjects, not be the subject. He wanted to observe, rather than be observed. Asceticism was a hallmark of his brand," the newspaper said.

Cunningham, who had tried his hand at hat making, was drafted by the U.S. Army during the Korean War. After he got out in 1953, he eventually found work as a fashion reporter.

In the mid-1960s he acquired a small camera to help him with his work, and that started him off in fashion photography.

In 2008, the French government awarded him the Legion

*"I had just the most marvelous time with that camera.
Everybody
I saw I was able to record."*

Cunningham wrote in the Times in 2002 d'Honneur for his work. A year later, he was named a Living Landmark by the New York Landmarks Conservancy.

Cunningham became known to a wider world through an acclaimed 2010 documentary chronicling his career, in which Vogue Magazine editor Anna Wintour quipped: "We all get dressed for Bill." In an obituary in Vogue, editor-at-large Hamish Bowles wrote "his scrupulous editorial standards of both content and comportment were old world."

Arthur Ochs Sulzberger Jr., publisher and chairman of the Times, said Cunningham's "company was sought after by the fashion world's rich and powerful, yet he remained one of the kindest, most gentle and humble people I have ever met."

His life was one of austerity. He slept on a single size cot where he lived until 2010 in a studio above Carnegie Hall, chock full of file cabinets containing his negatives.

When asked why he spent years ripping up checks for his work from magazines, he said, "Money's the cheapest thing. Liberty and freedom is the most expensive," the Times reported.

Officials: Israel and Turkey agree to normalize ties

Israel and Turkey on Sunday reached agreement to normalize ties, senior officials from both countries said, to end a rift over the Israeli navy's killing of 10 Turkish pro-Palestinian activists who tried to sail to the blockaded Gaza Strip in 2010.

A formal announcement on the restoration of ties and the details of the agreement were expected on Monday by Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu in Rome, and Turkish Prime Minister Binali Yildirim in Ankara.

"We reached an agreement with Israel to normalize bilateral relations on Sunday in Rome," a senior Turkish official said, describing ing the agreement as a "diplomatic victory" for Turkey, although Israel has not accepted to lift the Gaza blockade, one of Ankara's three conditions for an agreement.

The once-firm allies had been quietly mending fences in trade and tourism since their leaders held a conciliatory telephone call in 2013 and negotiations have intensified over the past six months to pave the way for a mutual return of ambassadors.

Netanyahu traveled to Rome on Sunday to meet U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry and Israeli and Turkish officials were also in the Italian capital to finalize the deal.

Israel, which had already offered its apologies — one of Ankara's three conditions for a deal — for its lethal raid on the Mavi Marmara activist ship, agreed to pay out $20 million to the bereaved and injured, the Israeli official said in a briefing to Israeli reporters traveling with Netanyahu. Roller coaster carriage derails, injuring 11 at Scottish theme park

A roller coaster carriage at a theme park in Scotland came off its rails on Sunday and fell 30 feet onto a children's ride, local media reported, with police saying 11 people had been injured.

The Daily Record newspaper cited eyewitness reports saying the carriage, carrying 10 people, on the Tsunami ride at M&D's theme park in Motherwell in southern Scotland flew off the rails as it turned a corner and plummeted to the ground.

"A serious incident occurred at M&D's today involving the Tsunami roller coaster. We have all emergency services on site to assist. The theme park is closed until further notice," a spokeswoman for the park said

Lanarkshire police said emergency services were dealing with an incident at the theme park.

"At this time we are aware of 11 casualties — two adults and nine children, who are all being treated at local hospitals. We are unable to give more detail of their injuries at this stage," it said in a statement posted on Facebook.

The Scottish ambulance service said six ambulance crews, a special operations response team and emergency doctors had been sent to the park.

Pictures on Twitter showed people trying to help those trapped in an upside-down carriage.

Italy arrests second most wanted mafia boss

Italy's second most wanted mobster Ernesto Fazzalari was arrested on Sunday after almost two decades on the run, apprehended by the paramilitary Carabinieri police.

Fazzalari, of the notorious Calabrian 'Ndrangheta, Italy's richest and most powerful criminal organization, had been a fugitive since June 1996.

He was the country's second most wanted mafia boss in terms of influence and danger to society behind Matteo Messina Denaro, of the Sicilian Cosa Nostra Mafia, a police statement said.

Fazzalari, 46, faces a life sentence, having already been tried in absentia and found guilty of murder, mafia crimes, drug trafficking, robbery and illegal possession of weapons.

He was found in the early hours of Sunday in a house in a remote and mountainous area of the Calabria region on the southern tip of mainland Italy and did not resist arrest, the police said.

Fazzalari was at the head of one of the many family-based groups that control much of Calabrian society and make vast profits through the import and sale of drugs. REUTERS

...and some patients...

Would You Like Instant Proof?

If you want instant proof - you can just look at all of the actual patient testimonials we have included. These patients were once skeptical just like you... and are now either pain free... or eliminated quite a bit of their pain.

Here's the most important thing: Many said they saw this information SEVERAL times before finally deciding to take action and give us a call. As you can see - they are happy they did.

Once crippled with knee pain, they are playing golf again, dancing again, riding bikes again and going for long walks again.

But We Do Get

One Very Common Complaint

And it is: "I wish I started this treatment much sooner." Let's be very clear about this: Time is the most precious thing. There is no way to slow it down - or get any back once it is gone.

All the more reason for you to not suffer even one more second than you have to. Missing life suffering in pain is a tragedy. Isn't it time for you to get rid of your knee pain and start living the life you want and deserve?

And please understand this: One of the keys to success in medicine is early diagnosis and treatment. Like many diseases, arthritis only gets worse over time. The longer you wait - the more damage to your knee and eventually - the more pain. If you wait "past the point of no return", the entire knee joint can be degenerated and your ONLY option will be total knee replacement.

If you are suffering with knee arthritis pain, here is why you should act NOW:

When you have arthritis, you suffer a decrease in the lubricating fluids in your knee. In other words, your knee joints basically "dry up." The lubricating fluid that decreases is called "synovial fluid". Pharmaceutical companies can now make synovial fluid-like compounds that... during treatments... doctors precisely and directly apply these gel-like medicines into the knee joint. This helps replace the lubricating fluid to the knee joint - allowing it to move more freely and smoothly and often decreasing or even eliminating pain.

In fact, by using Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology, NY Pain MD doctors are able to double confirm the precise placement of the arthritis medicines used. This is to help ensure patients get the best possible results.

Another Important Factor

Viscosupplementation medications also come in several different brands and chemical make-ups. Just like all medications, some people respond better to some than others. While many doctors only use one type or brand, the experts at NY Pain MD use several and great effort is taken to figure out which is best for YOU.

What To Do Next IF You Are In Pain Your Special Invitation

NY Pain MD offers a limited number of complimentary knee arthritis treatment screenings every month. These screenings are a way for knee arthritis sufferers to get their questions answered and find out if they are a candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at NY Pain MD.

For a complimentary screening, call 800-227-KNEE. The screenings fill up fast every month. This screening is no cost and there is no further obligation. Call 800-227-KNEE to schedule your screening. I just go right to the golf course. I'm able to keep up with these guys who walk - I'm right next to them! My guys on the golf course would say Hey, look at this he doesn't need us to put the ball up any more.

When I'm playing on the course I don't have any pain any more I don't have any aches and pain.

I'm out there playing!

"I feel like a new woman"

I came to the clinic because I was not sleeping at night. My leg was pumping. There were times when I sat so long the knee would tighten up. I would get in pain and I would be miserable and I would have it for the whole night. After the treatment I goof around with my grandchildren. I feel like a new woman. It's great. I know I don't have to sit on the couch and be in pain and I can just pick up and get dressed and go out. It was so gentle.

It got to the point where I couldn't stand up for a period of time and I knew something had to be done about it. You walk into the doctors office - he puts your leg in a machine - he shows you where he is going to do the procedure and before you know it... it's done and you're out there. Now I'm able to take out my bicycle a couple of the guys and myself we took a couple of rides out in the woods and we had a good time and I couldn't do that for years and now I'm able to do it again.

The pain was excruciating like 24/7. Nothing I took over-the-counter would work so I knew it was something more serious. When I saw that my condition was not getting any better, I decided to do something about it and I immediately made an appointment - I went and started treatment. The feeling of getting back to my dancing and my mobility is indescribable. I feel like a new woman - It's amazing.

"I am ecstatic with the results of this procedure"

One day, as I was running, my knee got tighter and tighter. I had to stop and just walk home. They x-rayed me and said I was a candidate for it. You sit there for about 2-3 minutes and then you are up and walking out the door. I am ecstatic with the results of this procedure because I could not run just weeks before. I ran my race without any issues. I felt good - it just opened a door that was closing.

"I Can Finally Live My Life"

Prior to the relief center I was taking (2-30) and I was becoming addicted to it and it was damaging my health. Since the treatment, I've been able to be less dependent on them. I don't feel helpless anymore. Since going through the procedure I can finally live my life.

THOUSANDS of knee arthritis sufferers flock for this advanced medical treatment - How they relieved pain while so many continue to suffer

Knee Arthritis Pain: The Untold Story

Why patients come from all over the Tri-State area for this knee arthritis pain treatment and why waiting can decrease your chance to live a pain free life again

By: Scott Edger - America's Health Writer

NY Pain MD, a center for Non-Surgical Medical Relief For Spine And Joint Pain Relief, is a medical clinic with multiple locations in New York City that has treated thousands of knee arthritis patients. Here is what every knee arthritis sufferer should know about the best treatments and options available today. And why waiting can drastically decrease your chances to live a pain free life again.

The information you are about to read can possibly save you from years and years of agonizing knee pain. It might even keep you from getting total knee replacement surgery. Please pay careful attention.

What you are about to read is a cutting-edge medical treatment... but it is NOT what it appears to be at first glance. In fact, I'm going to have to ask for a bit of patience from you if you have already unsuccessfully tried any (or many) other knee arthritis pain treatments. You see, many knee arthritis sufferers had already tried what seemed to be similar treatments to what we are going to talk about and did not get the results they wanted. But I assure you there is something VERY DIFFERENT about the technology and the way we do this treatment that can possibly make it much more effective for many... and it often gets results when many others have failed.

This is why patients come from all over the tri-state area and beyond to have their knee arthritis pain treated here.

What Results Can Be Expected?

Like all medical treatments, the results vary and can not be predicted. In fact, it is impossible to predict results and there are no statistics proving what the "average" patients can expect. Everyone is individual and gets individual results - so we never tell anyone to expect the same results as any of our other patients. But to be 100% clear - many knee arthritis sufferers get dramatic results. It is not uncommon for patients to either postpone knee replacement surgery for years - or even permanently cancel it.

What Are Treatments Like?

Treatments are simple, fast and virtually painless. The total time of the procedure itself is only 10 minutes and most say it is like getting a flu shot. You walk out of the clinic just minutes after your procedure.

But There is A BIG Problem

The key is the treatment must be EXTREMELY PRECISE. Often ignored by many other clinics, if the procedure is just slightly off, the medication will not get into the knee joint and the treatment will not work.

That's why the experts at NY Pain MD use what they call "Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology" or P.A.T.T., so they can see the medicine going directly into the knee joint - in live motion- during the treatment.

Research shows that doctors performing procedures without Precision Arthritis

Targeting can miss the joint as much as 30% of the time. If you had viscosupplementation (or Stem Cells or PRP) without the exactness of P.A.T.T. and did not get good results - this may

"I cannot ask for better results"

Dr. Stanley Weiner, M.D. - Surgeon

I had (replacement) surgery scheduled last year. Three months before I made an appointment... I was attacked at the time with which I was evaluated and the treatment schedule implemented. The results I had at NY Pain MD were outstanding. I cannot ask for better results. After the treatment I was able to go back to work with no discomfort at all. They use a digital monitor to locate the space that they use the treatment for and it's... it's like exact science. Dr. Stanley Weiner MD

"I don't have any pain any more"

"My this feels terrific"

I was diagnosed here on bone about 2 years ago. I went to see an Orthopedic Surgeon and he said my bones were shot and I need to get them replaced. The NY Pain guys said after looking at x-rays they could help. That procedure is so basic so simple so quick in 15 minutes you are in and out. When I got up out of the chair I stood up and I said, "My this feels terrific."

"I feel like a new woman -It's amazing"

After I had the treatments... the last tumor...

STRANGE DAYS

Europe in turmoil. Dems snoozing on the floor. Trump and Clinton trading punches. In political terms, last week was as surreal as a Buñuel film. (Yes, that's a tip of the hat to the Eurozone.) And this week? Put the clocks in the bathtub and the giraffe in the garage — here are three things to watch.

1. Brexit backlash

Politicos around the world will be scrutinizing the markets to measure the staying power of all the Brexit chaos. Wall Street was rattled to its foundation on Friday, and if that continues you can bet the D.C. crowd will get jumpy. Donald Trump has already suggested it is a harbinger of similar upheavals in the vote here this fall — meaning, he'll win. Hillary Clinton's play? If the economy starts pushing toward a free fall, watch her reprise a chorus of that old campaign favorite, "You Need a Steady Hand at the Wheel." And you know just who she has in mind.

2. Warren peace

For the longest time, hard-core lefties were practically begging Elizabeth Warren to jump into the race and hammer Clinton for the Democratic nomination. But this week, the progressive Massachusetts senator will instead hit the campaign trail with Clinton in the battleground state of Ohio. The clear hope: Warren will lure reluctant Bernie Sanders supporters into the camp. Of course, it would also be a trial run for Warren taking the VP spot ... doesn't seem likely, but stay tuned.

3. Cash dash

Have you noticed how Donald Trump is not appearing at so many big rallies lately? Perhaps that's because he is focusing more on fundraising, which has become a serious concern for his fellow Republicans. Many top GOPers fear the billionaire could wind up ironically outspent by the Dems if he doesn't do a better job attracting deep-pocketed donors. Trump will be in Colorado and Illinois this week, but watch for him to be sniffing out cash everywhere. It's a smart move. Even the little Monopoly man knows you have to pass go and collect $200 dollars now and then.

GET YOUR GAME OF THRONES FIX IN NORTHERN IRELAND

IT'S NOT A WRAP.

Season six of Game of Thrones might be over, but that doesn't mean you have to wait until 2017 to experience the series again. Northern Ireland is one of the principal filming locations of HBO's gripping drama, and offers a host of locations and activities to let you get an inside look at the Seven Kingdoms. Our Game of Thrones Guide offers the best filming sites to visit in Northern Ireland, special experiences to try, and even some fun facts that you can use to impress fellow Game of Thrones fans.

Why Northern Ireland?

Most of Game of Thrones is filmed in Northern Ireland, both at Belfast's Titanic Studios and elsewhere throughout the region. Aesthetically, Northern Ireland's breadth of landscapes and environments translate naturally with the television series, which is meant to occur over two continents with varied terrain and climates. Northern Ireland's immense talents in production, directing, and cinematography made it an easy choice for filming the series. Since HBO brought the drama to the country for filming in 2009, it's estimated that roughly $160M has been infused into Northern Ireland's economy.

Tour the Countryside

Northern Ireland is home to many diverse landscapes, including glacial valleys and mountains, lush forests, and craggy coastlines. Throughout the region, ancient ruins and castles overlook rolling fields, bluffs, and winding rivers. Roughly the size of Connecticut, Northern Ireland boasts diverse settings despite its small area, providing an impeccable backdrop for the world of Game of Thrones, and an amazing touring opportunity for fans of the series. From the Haunted Forest to the Dothraki Grasslands, Northern Ireland's counties offer some of the most celebrated locations from Game of Thrones, allowing Westeros to come to life for visitors to this distinctive region.

UNITE THE SEVEN KINGDOMS

Since season one, it seems everyone who has sat on the Iron Throne

Ballintoy Harbour is used as the site of the Iron Islands in Game of Thrones. The fishing village on the coast of County Antrim has remained largely unchanged in its history, making it a charming and authentic destination.

This inlet within Ballintoy Harbour is the very spot where Euron Greyjoy was drowned, before coming back to life as king of the Iron Islands in season six of Game of Thrones.

"It's a big and beautiful world. Most of us live and die in the same corner where we were born and never get to see any of it. I don't want to be most of us."

—OBERYN MARTELL

Located in County Down, Castle Ward's historic farmyard is used to film Winterfell, the ancestral home of House Stark on Game of Thrones.

DID YOU KNOW?

The Titanic was built in Northern Ireland's largest shipyard in Belfast in the early 1900s. Titanic Studios, the studio where much of Game of Thrones is filmed, was named after the famous ship.

has planned on uniting the great houses, while off in Essos, Daenerys Targaryen has had her sights on conquering them. While touring Northern Ireland, you'll be able to see much of the Seven Kingdoms, and other key sites throughout Westeros and Essos. And, with Northern Ireland's small size, it's easy to hit several filming sites in just a few days of road tripping. Here are some of our top picks to visit on your trip:

1. Dragonstone at Downhill Strand

Aptly named, Dragonstone was the original home of House Targaryen—the family of Daenerys (commonly known as the Mother of Dragons, amongst other names). The site fell to the Baratheons, and it was there that Melisandre, the Red Woman, eerily burned the old gods on the beach in service to the Lord of Light. This scenic beach is Downhill Strand, which rests in the wake of the eighteenth century ruins of Mussenden Temple, making it an ideal location for portentous flames.

2. The Iron Islands at Ballintoy Harbour

The craggy coastline of County Antrim offers an ideal location for the Greyjoy's home. Home to a sparsely populated fishing village, Ballintoy Harbour becomes an iconic location of the Iron Islands. It offers viewers the first glimpse of the rocky Iron Islands in the series, shown when Theon Greyjoy docks at Pyke to seek an alliance with his father Balon. With only 165 residents, Ballintoy is small, and has remained largely unchanged in its history.

3. Birthplace of the Shadow Baby at Cushendon Caves

Ser Davos Seaworth has had to handle a lot of ups and downs in the past few seasons of Game of Thrones, and escorting a very pregnant Melisandre into a cave to give birth to the haunting shadow baby to assassinate Renly Baratheon was definitely an unexpected (and terrifying) experience for him. Located at Cushendon Caves on the northeast coast of Northern Ireland, this site includes an inviting coastline with rock outcroppings, and a walkway that leads you into the caves.

4. The Kingsroad at the Dark Hedges

Immediately recognizable by its serpentine tree trunks, The Kingsroad is an integral road in Game of Thrones, making its first appearance in season one of the series. The real location—the Dark Hedges—was created in the eighteenth century when the Stuart family planted rows of beech trees to impress visitors as they came to the entrance of their home. The hundreds-year-old trees mark a popular road for road-tripping, and you won't even need to disguise yourself to cross it like Arya Stark did.

5. The Dothraki Grasslands at Shillanavogy Valley

When we first meet Khal Drogo's khalasar in season one, the nomadic herd has camped in a vast verdant field before departing for Vaes Dothrak. This scene is recreated in the Shillanavogy Valley, which is located beneath Slemish Mountain in County Antrim. Walking through this lush valley instantly transports visitors back to the beginning of Khal Drogo and Daenerys Targaryen's marriage.

6. Winterfell, Home of House Stark at Castle Ward

The capital of the North, Winterfell is the ancestral home of House Stark, a family that has seen its share of ups and downs since the onset of Game of Thrones. But you only have to think about happier times when you visit Castle Ward, the eighteenth-century mansion where Winterfell is reimagined for the screen. Castle Ward presents a blend of Gothic and classical architecture, making it a distinctive site to visit in County Down. The castle showcases the iconic courtyard, a farmyard, and armory—all featured in the show.

7. The Haunted Forest at Tollymore Forest Park

From the opening scene of the series, The Haunted Forest sets an ominous tone for Game of Thrones viewers. Located north of the Wall, this snowy forest is home to primordial trees, and more alarmingly, the army of undead White Walkers. The forest is filmed in historic Tollymore Forest Park, located in the east of County Down. Walking through the park, visitors find a meandering river, stone follies and bridges, and exotic trees. And with any luck, no white walkers will appear from behind an ancient oak tree. Of course, you can bring a shard of dragon glass, just in case.

8. Beric Dondarrion's Hideout at Pollnagollum Cave

Although Arya Stark tried to hide while on the Kingsroad, she was temporarily captured and brought to the Brotherhood Without Banners' Hideout in the Hollow Hill, a cave in the Riverlands. Perhaps the most famous of the brotherhood is Beric Dondarrion, who has been resurrected several times throughout his life. This cave is reimagined from Pollnagollum Cave, which is a part of the Marble Arch Caves Global Geopark. This park is comprised of a maze of underground passages, making it a mysterious walking tour for visitors to the county.

DID YOU KNOW?

Local Northern Ireland jeweler Steensons creates many inspired adornments for the drama, including the wedding crowns worn by Queen Margaery Tyrell and Joffrey Baratheon, Sansa's poison necklace, and the Lannister pendants. Visit the workshop in Glenarm for a closer look.

9. The Red Fork at Inch Abbey

One of the three main rivers in the aptly named Riverlands, the Red Fork is host to several pertinent events throughout Game of Thrones. At the Red Fork, Catelyn Stark learned of her husband Ned's death, Jaime Lannister was captured, and Robb Stark was crowned King of the North. The scenes were filmed at Inch Abbey, a 12th century stone structure, now in ruin. The abbey ruins offer a captivating and ominous backdrop for these famous moments in the drama.

10. Castle Black at Magheramorne Quarry

The ancient headquarters of The Night's Watch and home to Jon Snow—and quite a lot of drama—Castle Black is a fortress on the Wall. The foreboding post is filmed in a now abandoned limestone quarry in the hamlet of Magheramorne. The setting provides the courtyard, ravenry, mess hall, barracks and stone wall for the set, which is the basis for the ice wall that protects the northern border of Westeros.

EXPERIENCE GAME OF THRONES

Visitors to Northern Ireland can get even closer into the world of Game of Thrones by participating in curated experiences. There are dozens of tours throughout the region, including chauffeured trips on land and sea, film tours by bicycle, self-guided tours, and even overnight experiences.

Three Game of Thrones Experiences You Can't Miss

We've selected our favorite Game of Thrones activities for you to try while visiting Northern Ireland. Each of these activities takes place at famous filming locations, so it's easy to add these experiences into your GOT itinerary.

1. Be a Guest in Winterfell

In addition to a tour of the grounds, the beloved Stark family home of Winterfell provides activities that Game of Thrones fans will revel in, all of which include a greeting by a Maester and costumes to make guests feel even more at home in Winterfell. Located at Castle Ward in County Down, Winterfell offers the following experiences to make you feel at home in The North:

Take Aim

In the courtyard, visitors can participate in an archery tour, where they'll dress like a Stark while trying a hand at medieval archery, hoping for outcomes more like Arya than Bran when picking out their bows and arrows.

Eat like a King

Guests can relive the welcoming feast that was laid out for King Robert Baratheon when he visited the Starks in season

one. The medieval banquet includes fire pits, benches draped with reindeer skins, deadly wine, and traditional music.

Meet the Direwolves

If some of your favorite Game of Thrones characters are of the furry variety, meeting two of the Stark's Direwolves is a must while touring Winterfell. Now grown pups from the first season,

DID YOU KNOW?

Game of Thrones employs more local Northern Ireland residents than the country's civil service does.

Odin and Thor are Northern Inuit dogs and can be met at the castle with prior arrangement.

The Glens of Antrim are a series of nine glens located in the north of County Antrim. Glenariff, known as "The Queen of the Glens" is used for filming the Runestone in the Vale of Arryn.

The Antrim Plateau and Binevenagh Mountain in County Londonderry serve as the backdrop for Game of Thrones' Dothraki Sea.

One of the most photographed sites in Northern Ireland, Mussenden Temple rests high above the beaches of Downhill Strand. This site was used for filming Dragonstone, the ancestral home of House Targaryen.

2. Spend a Night in the Haunted Forest

Although the night is dark and full of terrors, brave visitors can spend the night in the Haunted Forest. This overnight glamping experience is much more welcoming than what members of the Night's Watch had to deal with beyond the wall. Located in sprawling Tolymore Forest Park, the setting includes medieval ruins, lush forests full of centuries-old trees, waterways, and gentle rolling hills. It's no wonder that the Free Folk would choose to settle in such an environment, that is, until you remember that White Walkers are becoming more and more abundant in the forest. Wood pods offer a warm, cozy camping experience amidst the ancient trees of the Haunted Forest.

3. Take to the Sea

If you feel like an Ironborn, touring Game of Thrones by water allows you to see the sites from a different perspective. Setting sail on Stangford Lough in a boat that flies the Stark flag, this tour explores the coastal beauty of Westeros including Winterfell Castle, The Twins, and Robb Stark's Camp. With the wind in your face and the ocean around you, you'll feel like a salt king—without having to drown and come back to life like Euron Greyjoy. An additional sea safari option visits Ballintoy Harbour, Murlough Bay, and the cliffs that are often pictured as backdrops in the series.

Visit Northern Ireland like Tyrion Would

Northern Ireland is known for a lively pub scene, so be sure to visit your share and toast to one of the wisest Westerosi, Tyrion Lannister. As he famously said in season six, "That's what I do. I drink and know things." With this next segment, you'll be able to drink and know things too.

DOORS OF THRONES

In January 2016, a storm brought down some of the famous three-hundred-year-old trees from the Dark Hedges, where the Kingsroad in Game of Thrones is filmed. Although this loss was upsetting, the felled trees have been salvaged and turned into distinctive works of art, giving them new life.

The fallen trees have been reimagined into intricately crafted wood doors, each of which represents a different Game of Thrones episode from season six. Together, the doors use iconic symbols and scenes to tell the story of the season. Each of the ten doors is on display throughout Northern Ireland in pubs, cafes, and inns. All of the doors are located near known filming locations, so if visitors come across a door, they will know they're in Game of Thrones territory. This multi-location art exhibit allows visitors to see another side of season six while enjoying a pint—or more—of Guinness.

PLAN YOUR VISIT

While you anxiously await season seven, a visit to Northern Ireland will help you get your Game of Thrones fix. With dozens of sites throughout the small yet impressive region, you can experience Westeros like only the most well-traveled Westerosi has. Belfast International Airport welcomes direct flights from Newark with United Airlines. There are additional direct services from JFK, Philadelphia, and Boston to Dublin, which is a short drive to Northern Ireland (90 min).

This summer, dare to play the Game of Thrones in Northern Ireland.■

Clinton campaign hits Trump for seeing Brexit as boon to his business

Hillary Clinton's presidential campaign accused Donald Trump on Sunday of caring more about how Britain's historic vote to leave the European Union would benefit his financial bottom line than how it would impact the U.S. economy.

Clinton campaign manager Robby Mook acknowledged parallels between the populist anger and anti-establishment fervor that fueled the Brexit vote and Trump's rise to the nomination, but said the Republican candidate's reaction showed he was not fit to occupy the White House.

"Hillary Clinton looks at this through the lens of how it's going to affect middle-class families, Donald

Hillary Clinton GETTY IMAGES

Trump through the lens of how it will help his bottom line," Mook said on "Fox News Sunday."

In a national television ad released on Sunday, the Clinton campaign featured the wealthy real estate developer's comments on Friday that the fall of the British currency after the Brexit vote could mean more business for his golf course in Turnberry, Scotland, where he was speaking.

"Every president is tested by world events, but Donald Trump thinks about how his golf resort can profit from them," said the 30-second ad.

Paul Manafort, campaign chairman for Trump, rejected the Clinton charge and said Trump was more in sync with the global economic frustration exemplified by the Brexit vote. In contrast, the Clinton ad showed her campaign's "tone deafness" by focusing on things the American people did not care about, he said.

Supreme Court poised to issue major abortion ruling

The Supreme Court is due on Monday to issue its first major abortion ruling since 2007 against a backdrop of unremitting divisions among Americans on the issue and a decades-long decline in the rate at which women terminate pregnancies.

The court's decision on whether a Republican-backed 2013 Texas law placed an undue burden on women exercising their constitutional right to abortion is one of three remaining cases for the court to decide on Monday, the last day of its term. The other major one involves whether the justices will overturn the corruption conviction of former Virginia Gov. Robert McDonnell.

The last time the justices decided a major abortion case was nine years ago when they ruled 5-4 to uphold a federal law banning a late-term abortion procedure.

Americans remain closely divided over whether abortion should be legal. In a Reuters/Ipsos online poll involving 6,769 U.S. adults conducted from June 3 to June 22, 47 percent of respondents said abortion generally should be legal and 42 percent said it generally should be illegal.

Views on abortion in the United States have changed very little over the decades, according to historical polling data.

Kanye West debuts racy new video

We will never be able to unsee what we just saw.

On Friday, Kanye West debuted the music video for his song "Famous" to a live audience at The Forum in Los Angeles. There are all kinds of adjectives to describe the video, but here are just a few that come to mind: bizarre, scandalous, provocative and totally racy.

In possibly his most audacious work yet, the rapper's music video features himself and his wife, Kim Kardashian, naked in bed alongside the equally naked bodies of Rihanna, Caitlyn Jenner, Donald Trump, Taylor Swift and more — in case anyone forgot, the song boasts infamous, Swift-bashing lyrics: "I feel like me and Taylor might still have sex. Why? I made that bitch famous."

There are still many questions surrounding the authenticity of the celebrity cameos — while West and Kardashian certainly play themselves in the video, no one is sure whether any of the other appearances were the real deal. According to Rolling Stone, many of the bodies were created synthetically. Still, the credits of the music video give an eerie "special thanks" to every celebrity involved "for being famous."

For the next week, the video will stream exclusively on Jay Z's music streaming service, Tidal. Be warned: It is seriously NSFW.

Taylor brings Tom home to meet the parents

ALL PHOTOS

Taylor Swift introduced new love interest Tom Hiddleston to her parents in the singer's hometown of Nashville last Thursday, US Weekly reported.

The source told the magazine that the pair had lunch at Epice, and headed back to her apartment where the parents met the 35-year-old actor — pretty quick for a two-week relationship.

The fledgling couple then joined singer Holly Williams and her husband for dinner at Adele's, an insider tells US — where the two weren't afraid to show their affections.

"They looked like they were having an amazing time. Taylor was laughing at Tom's jokes," an insider reportedly told US.

Kylie and Tyga back together?

Are Kylie Jenner and Tyga giving it another shot?

A source told People Magazine that the rapper is "working hard" to get her back.

"Tyga seems more interested in getting back together than Kylie does," the source reportedly said. "Kylie still seems to enjoy being single. She acts like she is figuring things out."

The sources add that Jenner, 18, "likes Tyga's attention" and having "the upper hand now." Who doesn't?

The two were also spotted holding hands at Kanye West's video premiere for "Famous" Friday night, though the two aren't among the recognizable names depicted nude in the film.

Elle Fanning loved going to the dark side

In "The Neon Demon," the young actress gets to play what she thinks is an evil model.

MATT PRIGGE
@mattprigge
matt.prigge@metro.us

Elle Fanning just graduated high school. As in, the week before we spoke. But the actress is already a seasoned vet at 18, having been on screens since she was 3. In "The Neon Demon," she adds Nicolas Winding Refn ("Drive") to the impressive list of directors she's worked with, including David Fincher, Cameron Crowe and both Francis Ford and Sofia Coppola. In the film, she plays Jesse, a teen model who enters a particularly hellish version of the fashion industry, with unsightly results.

So who or what is the "Neon Demon"?

Elle Fanning plays a 16-year-old model who rises to the top in Nicolas Winding Refn's dark "The Neon Demon." BROAD GREEN PICTURES

I think it's me. [Laughs] I think it's Jesse. But it's not only Jesse; it's this spirit, kind of like a disease that infects people when they're beauty-obsessed. Everyone's kind of beauty-obsessed. It's very universal. In fairy tales the princess is always young and a virgin and beautiful. It's not just physicality; it's also this aura of being young and having that thing. I think Jesse represents that. We said she was like Dorothy in "Oz" but if she was evil.

Forever young

Fashion is a world, like the motion picture industry, that's obsessed with beauty and youth. How do you handle that as a young person?

I'm in this generation where there's a lot of social media. There's great things about it. But it's scary as well. You're constantly comparing yourself to these dead images. You think, "That's beauty." Teenagers are looking at these images and thinking, "That's perfection." But perfect doesn't exist. When you see a photo of someone with a normal body who hasn't been Photoshopped, they think, "That's not perfect." But that's real. This is not real.

The filmmaker Wim Wenders once called selfies a perversion of photography, because people look inside, not outside.

But is that bad? It might not be. There is that line when it crosses over into narcissism. But you should love yourself, and you should think you're beautiful.

Do you really think she's evil? It's a bit ambiguous and other characters do worse than her.

They do. But I think she drives them to do it. She's the poison that infects the city and those around her. And she's dangerous. She's gaining this power and realizing how to use it. You can look at her as evil. Or you can see she's not that innocent at all. I looked at her as a vampire. You don't know how old she is, really. You don't know what happened to her parents.

She's plopped there, alone, and I think she had this plan. When we were filming it was there were all these layers underneath. She's so mysterious and she's so toxic.

This is an intense film.

How did Refn chill you out? He did not chill me out at all. [Laughs] I was like, "Yes!" I was so excited. We actually made it darker during filming. I was so on-board even before I read the script, just hearing that he was doing a movie about a teenage girl — the king of blood and masculinity and violence. That combination was very cool to me — as was to have a woman as complex as this, too.

Emotional noise of NYC on a canvas

South Korean artist KwangHo Shin's visceral art reaches into the soul.

HELEN MURPHY

Fans of Jackson Pollock's abstract expressionism will find a contemporary kindred spirit in the South Korean artist KwangHo Shin at his new exhibition, now open in Chelsea.

The portrait-heavy show at Unix Gallery, collectively called "There Is No Title," is the product of the Seoul-based artist's recent residency in New York City. The question marks reflect the daily experience of a city full of individuals blurring as they pass by countless other anonymous faces on the street.

The collection includes self-portraits, models and even internationally known celebrities — but you probably won't be able to guess who they are. Shin's impasto technique blurs and covers their faces: The portraits are done in charcoal before he applies globs of colorful oil paint over them.

HOW TO GET AHEAD

Young gamers are using technology for good, not evil

Mouse, a program for underserved schools, teaches social responsibility through video games and engineering.

 ALIZAH SALARIO
@Alirosa
alizah.salario@metro.us

Video games tend to get a bad rap: They promote violence, limit physical activity and turn young minds to mush.

That's a pretty reductive assessment, suggests Marc Lesser, senior director of learning design at Mouse, a New York City youth program with a mission to use video games, and technology in general, as a "force of good."

Mouse partners with as many as 100 public schools each year, bringing in experts to lead elective courses and after-school programs in engineering, computation and information technology. The majority of Mouse schools are under-resourced, and a key aspect of the grant-funded program's mission is to "close the divide in equity in who gets to participate in STEM careers," says Lesser. Women represent only 12 percent of the engineering workforce, African-Americans and

Today's young tinkers, who will come of age in world where computer programming is baseline knowledge, need to be active producers — creators, innovators and developers — and not just passive consumers of technology. That's why Mouse goes beyond basic 101-level skills — and that's where the lessons derived from video games come in.

"Different games are activating different parts of people's cognition," explains Lesser. "There are active games and there are passive games. Active games we know to be supportive of skills related to problem-solving, to the strength of systems thinking for young people."

Take the world-generating, narrative-driven game "Minecraft."

"You have a few things going on. You need to learn what materials produce what effects, which is at the core of national science standards in K-12," says Lesser, who recalls the way one student applied the concept of cause-and-effect from the game to create a trap door using a pressure system.

"They're also creating alternate worlds in a way that English teachers love because suddenly it gives you an opportunity to learn all kinds of things related to narrative and telling the story of your design."

Improving digital literacy

There is extensive research on video games and cognition; one study of note referenced in a 2014 article in the American Journal of Play found that action video games had a positive impact on basic cognitive functions like perception, attention, memory and decision-making.

Active games requiring players to engage all cognitive cylinders "really mirror what happens in a professional context now," says Lesser. NYU's incredible Create Lab, for instance, uses simulation and interdisciplinary skills in product design.

Lesser, who co-founded Emoti-Con! the NYC

Youth Digital Media and Technology Festival, sees the intersection of tech and social responsibility in the professional world, and he's taken it to the classroom.

"Almost all courses end with students applying new skills to real problems," Lesser says. "Young people are taking an issue and designing a game that builds awareness, or is set within the context of a global issue."

In addition to a Green Tech curriculum that includes building electric generators, DIY batteries and solar-powered toys, students develop final products that attempt to address real-world needs. One student project included a climate-change video game on reducing carbon footprints.

It's all part of teaching students to use technology for a larger purpose and avoid the good/bad dichotomy we often use when talking about it.

"What folks don't realize is how complex cognition is when we're learning," Lesser says.

I must admit, I'm not the biggest soccer fan in the world. That said, I have started to watch more and more over the years. The last few weeks, I have found the two international tournaments, UEFA Euro 2016 and Copa America, to be highly enjoyable. The crowds, the intensity and the passion by the players for their sport and their countries is prevalent. As those tournaments start to wind down and come to an end, it makes me turn to MLS. I have and will start to pay more and more attention to the two MLS clubs in this area, the Red Bulls and NYCFC.

As we get set for a holiday weekend ahead — which for many of us will include the beach, barbecues and fireworks — make sure to throw some soccer into the July Fourth weekend as we have ourselves a big match on the pitch when the Red Bulls visit Yankee Stadium to face NYCFC on Sunday with a noon start time (ESPN). In short, the Red Bulls have stamped themselves as the kings of the Tri-State area going into the meeting.

The Red Bulls slammed NYCFC in the last meeting at Yankee Stadium between the two local teams. GETTY IMAGES

Since NYC came into the MLS, the Red Bulls have won all four meetings. In the last meeting, they pasted NYCFC, 7-0, which is a score that is rarely seen on any level of professional soccer. Red Bulls fans are calling it the "Red Wedding" — an obvious Game of Thrones reference.

MLS has tried to make this into a bigtime rivalry, but so far NYC — despite having the second highest payroll in MLS — isn't coming close to competing with the Red Bulls.

NYC has three of the top seven salaries in MLS between

Frank Lampard, Andrea Pirlo and David Villa. The Red Bulls' most expensive player is at No. 42, Bradley Wright-Phillips. It is all about the team concept for the Red Bulls. They continue to prove that the whole is greater than the sum of its parts.

This is a dramatic turnaround from two years ago when they had the likes of Thierry Henry and Tim Cahill on their roster, two of the five biggest salaries in MLS.

The concept, brought on board by sporting director Ali Curtis and head coach Jesse Marsch has worked. Both Curtis and Marsch are in their second year and continue to prove that they are ahead of the curve. The Red Bulls won the Supporters' Shield, MLS' equivalent to the Presidents' Trophy, for best record last year. They did this with the lowest payroll in MLS and no superstar players. They certainly do not have the big names like NYC's aging trio of Villa, Lampard and Pirlo, who are all over 35 years old. Oddly enough, NYCFC represents the past and the Red Bulls represent the future. NYCFC might have won the press conferences, but the Red Bulls win where it matters most.

NYCFC's payroll for 2016 is just under $21 million. How about the Red Bulls? They are south of $6 million.

This offseason, the Red Bulls continued this movement by signing seven players from their academy system. Their New York Red Bulls II, the minor league team coached by John Wolyniec, is near the top of the USL.

All this adds up to show that the Red Bulls are currently the kings of New York and don't show any sign of letting go of that mantle anytime soon. Sunday should be more of the same. You have one program trying to gain a foothold, while another continues to show its dominance in the match-up.

Knicks ready to throw money around

Phil Jackson is ready to be a monster player in free agency.

TONY WILLIAMS
sports@metro.us

Knicks president Phil Jackson hit a solid double when he acquired former Bulls point guard Derrick Rose for bit parts. And now he's ready to swing for the fences.

July 1 is the official start of free agency, and with over $30 million in cap space — and only five players currently under contract — Jackson is ready to finally splurge.

The owner of 11 championship rings as a coach, Jackson knows what it takes to win in the NBA — stars. There aren't any Michael Jordans, Shaquille O'Neals, Kobe Bryants, or even Scottie Pippens on the open market this year, but there are plenty of impact franchise players.

With Rose in tow, and

Free agent Joakim Noah is certainly on the Knicks' radar. GETTY IMAGES

already having Carmelo Anthony and Kristaps Porzingis, the Knicks can boast a nice Big 3 to entice other stars to join. Couple that with New York being in a parity-driven Eastern Conference and the Knicks could actually go from also-ran to playoff contention rather quickly. That kind of jump would mean the Knicks would need to see which star is willing to come aboard. Obviously Jackson will request a meeting with pending Oklahoma City Thunder free agent Kevin Durant. But with reports that the Knicks have yet to even secure a meeting, that makes it a daunting task. Durant has reportedly scheduled visits with the Thunder, Golden State Warriors, San Antonio Spurs, Los Angeles Clippers, Miami Heat and Boston Celtics. All are playoff contenders with strong rosters.

If he can't procure Durant, then Jackson will need to target more realistic talents. Rose is already campaigning for former teammate Joakim Noah, who has already said that he has zero intentions of rejoining the Bulls. Noah, who missed most of last season with shoulder injury, would fill that gap at center left by Robin Lopez, who was a part of the Rose deal.

Even with him coming off shoulder surgery that ended his season in January, Noah won't lack for suitors. He's expected to be offered a maximum contract as soon as the clock strikes midnight on July 1. Reports state that the Washington Wizards will lead the charge, ready to offer a deal that would start at $26.6 million annually, and reach nearly $120 million over four seasons.

That would likely be too rich for Jackson's blood. But he'll definitely try, because when healthy Noah is one of the most impactful big men in the league. He's a top-flight defensive center, plays with unmatched intensity on every possession, is a great locker room leader, smart passer and one of the best bigs to defend the pick-and-roll.

Noah is also from New York, and used to play on the famed blacktop courts as a youth, so he's well-versed on what winning in New York would mean to Knicks fans.

Another guy who is familiar with New York is former Knick Jamal Crawford. The reigning Sixth Man of the Year, and the only one to ever win it three times, Crawford will be a free agent once his Clippers deal expires. Crawford, 36, still has big supporters within the organization and would be welcomed back with open arms.

Aries Reserve judgment until you have adequate proof. If you want to make changes, sign up to learn something new, or challenge your intelligence with something that interests you.

Taurus You are best off keeping personal information a secret until you are more familiar with the people you are dealing with. A personal change will improve your appearance.

Gemini Use common sense, and concentrate on doing things that will benefit you, not someone else. A professional opportunity will require personal change.

Cancer Don't let emotional situations overwhelm you. Step back and let matters unfold naturally. If you bide your time, the tables will turn in your favor. Avoid criticism.

Leo Travel and adventure will entice you. If you use your imagination, you'll find a way to mix business with pleasure. Challenge yourself mentally and test your leadership ability.

Virgo Fix up your surroundings and take care of your responsibilities. Invest in something that will grow in value. A partnership will require an attitude adjustment on your part.

Libra Relationships will be fraught with uncertainty. If you are a quiet observer and let others take action, you'll soon know what to do. Keep the peace.

Scorpio You'll learn a lot from a loved one. The insight you receive will help you make physical improvements that will encourage you to pursue an unusual goal. Romance is encouraged.

Sagittarius Money will be needed today, so don't let your generosity leave you broke. It's important to invest in yourself, your living quarters and important relationships.

Capricorn A reaction you have will lead to partnership problems. Don't do anything until you have all the facts. Your response will change the way you move forward.

Aquarius The way you express your ideas and plans will determine the outcome of a situation you face. Choose to make changes that satisfy you, instead of trying to appease someone.

Pisces Focus on what's important to you, and follow through with your plans. Once you are finished, the outcome will surprise those who doubt you. EUGENIA LAST
